Residents are set to celebrate the 2012 Olympic and Paralympic games and the Queen's Diamond Jubilee with as much enthusiasm as last year's Royal Wedding (above).

THIS summer the nation is set to celebrate everything from the Queen's Diamond Jubilee to London 2012.

But even if residents missed out on a Games ticket, there are still plenty of activities taking place all over the borough – and many of them are free. One Hackney Festival will see Rio carnival dancers join in a giant parade, CREATE 2012 pulls together arts activity from across East London, while Big Dance 2012 is set to entertain. Plus more acts continue to be announced for the free BBC Radio 1 Hackney Weekend 2012. See pages 3 & 8-9.

NEW CRIME STATS

OVERALL crime is down in Hackney, according to the latest figures from the Met Police.

Violent crime has dropped by nine per cent, with reductions in assault down 2.6 per cent; GBH 22.2 per cent; and offensive weapons 33.6 per cent.

Hackney Police's efforts to tackle burglary have seen success with break-ins to residents' homes down by two per cent; and business premises cut by 26.1 per cent. When these figures are compared to similar inner city London boroughs, Hackney saw the lowest volume and rate of burglary.

Cllr Sophie Linden, Cabinet Member for Crime, Sustainability and Customer Services, said: "Although the overall drop in crime is 0.5 per cent, there has been significant progress in some areas, like burglary.

"Crime in Hackney has been falling steadily for the past 10 years and we are confident that we can continue this positive trend. However, we're not complacent and we'll continue to work very closely with the police to keep Hackney safe."

There was a rise in the levels of robbery of 13.6 per cent, and theft by 25.4 per cent. Bike theft also went up by 8.8 per cent.

These increases are reflected across London as a whole, and have been attributed in part to an increase in the levels of unemployment and social deprivation in harsh economic times. When contrasted with similar London boroughs however, Hackney had a lower than average volume and rate of these types of crime.

Hackney police borough commander, Matthew Horne, said: "With our continued dedication, burglary has been on the decline and Hackney Police now has the highest detection rate in London."

Pastor Steven Richards (above) is a Local Leader who is organising community events for the 2012 Games; last year's Royal Wedding celebrations

Faith in the Games

PASTOR Steven Richards is making frantic preparations for the 2012 Olympic and Paralympic Games – an event he believes will place the borough firmly on the international map.

Pastor Richards is one of a number of residents who have volunteered to organise community events across the borough, as part of the Local Leaders initiative.

Run by LOCOG – the committee responsible for organising the Games – the scheme gives residents the chance to get involved in this once-in-a-lifetime event, by organising fetes and celebrations to mark the 2012 Games.

And by the time the Olympic opening ceremony takes place on 27 July, visitors to Homerton Baptist Church

“Hopefully the Games will put this place on the map and make Hackney a place that everyone wants to visit” in Barnabas Road will be greeted by a colourful scene of bunting, posters and flags, as well as a floral arrangement depicting the famous five Olympic rings.

“I couldn't really let the opportunity pass me or the community by,” said Pastor Richards, who has led services at the church for the past 26 years.

“This area has been neglected for such a long time – hopefully the Games will put this place on the map and make Hackney a place that everyone wants to visit,” he added.

Pastor Richards has planned a series of events at the church to mark the Games, including a community barbecue on 4 August, and a Jamaican evening on 6 August.

There are also plans for a one-man play recounting the life of former British Olympic great and committed Christian, Eric Liddell, whose compelling story was told in the Oscar-winning film ‘Chariots of Fire’.

Pastor Richards is also planning to stage a celebration tea commemorating the Queen's Diamond Jubilee on 5 June, at 4pm.

Kasabian joins Hackney line-up

KASABIAN is the latest big name act to be signed up to the BBC Radio 1 Hackney Weekend roster this summer.

The Leicester band will play before headliner Jay-Z on Saturday, 22 June. Speaking on Radio 1, guitarist Serge Pizzorno said: "It's massive. I'm really intrigued to see Jay-Z because he brings out such a big show."

Tickets to the two day festival are free, but registration is now closed. The majority of tickets are being allocated to people living in Hackney and the surrounding East London boroughs.

Hackney is also set to be allocated extra tickets to recognise the achievements and contribution of local young people aged 16 and over. Further details are due to be announced in the coming weeks.

Other acts scheduled to perform include Rihanna, who closes the Hackney Marshes event on Sunday, 23 June; Jack White; Florence + The Machine; Swedish House Mafia; Emeli Sandé; Labrinth; will.i.am; Tinie Tempah; David Guetta; Jessie J; Deadmau5; The Maccabees; The Ting Tings; and Professor Green.

News in brief

Labour wins local by-election

BEN Hayhurst has been elected as the councillor for Hackney Central ward in a by-election on 3 May. The Labour candidate, a barrister who has lived in the borough for eight years, secured 2,438 votes. Mustafa Korel (Green) received 545; Pauline Pearce (Lib Dem) 394; and Andrew Boff (Con) 196 votes. Over 41 per cent of Hackney Central residents turned out to vote, which was almost 10 per cent higher than the national average for this year's local elections.

The election was held due to the resignation of former Labour councillor Alan Laing. Ben, 30, describes himself as passionate about helping vulnerable young people in Hackney.

At the time of going to press, the result of the closely contested London Mayoral election had not been announced.

Arsenal player visits new pitch

RESIDENTS welcomed Arsenal right back Carl Jenkinson when he visited a refurbished pitch in Benjamin Close. The new games area now has an artificial pitch, floodlights and a brick wall at the back. Lifelong Gunners fan Carl joined in a mini football session with some of the local young people who are set to benefit from the facility. In addition, youngsters created artwork around the side of the pitch.

Footballer Carl Jenkinson

Carl said: "The surface is fantastic and I think it's great that it gives kids an opportunity. To come down here today and see where the money is going and the happiness it brings people is great." The pitch was part-funded by The Arsenal Foundation, which often uses sport and education to support communities that surround the world famous football club.

Lost Shakespeare artefacts found

ARTEFACTS taken from the site of William Shakespeare's lost East London theatre are to be displayed at Hackney Museum.

In 2008, archeologists confirmed Curtain Road as the location of one of London's oldest playhouses, where Shakespeare not only learnt his trade as a playwright and actor, but where the first performance of 'Romeo and Juliet' took place. The Shoreditch site was also home to Holywell Priory, an alchemist's workshop and warehouse.

Now, a fascinating Hackney Museum exhibition pulls together fragments found at the site including a 16th century pottery featuring an image of a man with beard and ruff; tiles from the priory; pipes and drinking vessels; mortar from the alchemist's workshop; and Victorian domestic items including a well-used toothbrush.

The theatre was built in 1576 as the first permanent base for James Burbage's group of players which included Shakespeare. According to theatre legend, Burbage fell out with the landowner in 1599, so on Christmas day they dismantled the building and shipped it across the Thames, where it was rebuilt as the Globe.

Heather Knight, from the Museum of London Archaeology, said: "Excavating the theatre added knowledge of this extraordinary figure."

The finds can be viewed from 17 May.

Speaker takes her final bow

AFTER a year that has seen her carry out over 300 engagements, Cllr Susan Fajana-Thomas will hand over her responsibilities as Speaker of Hackney on 16 May.

The Speaker acts as the borough's civic representative and the role is carried out each year by a serving councillor who is elected by other members of the Council.

With a strong focus on community cohesion, Cllr Fajana-Thomas has taken part in many events and projects, including celebrating the achievements of Hackney Community College students; unveiling a memorial commemorating firefighters who died in the borough during the Blitz; joining in the fun at tea dances for older people; and working with Hackney Youth Parliament.

She has also made numerous visits to the borough's schools, spent time with patients at Homerton hospital and presided over citizenship ceremonies for nearly 1,500 people. Along the way, she has raised over £13,000 for her chosen charities –

“It has been a privilege to serve and represent the people of Hackney over the past year”

Hackney and City Carers Centre and TimeLine.

Looking back on her time in office, Cllr Fajana-Thomas said: “It has been a privilege to serve and represent the people of Hackney over the past year.

“We live in a remarkable borough and I’ve been very lucky to have had the opportunity to see first hand how much good work goes on here. In particular, I enjoyed meeting young people who give me great hope for the future.

“I’m also delighted that I have been able to fundraise for two charities that do such excellent work.”

Cllr Fajana-Thomas is a Stoke Newington Ward councillor and has been an active member of the community for the last 15 years, working as a mentor on the London Refugee and Asylum Monitoring Scheme; being closely involved with Hawksley Court Residents’ Association; acting as vice-chair of Stoke Newington Housing Panel; and chairing Howard Road Resource Centre management committee.

She will continue in her role as Hackney’s civic representative until the new Speaker is elected at the Council’s AGM later this month.

Residents are invited to learn new skills, try something new, or help out schools during Adult Learners' Week, from 12 to 18 May

Try something new

HUNDREDS of residents will be heading back to school from 12 May, to learn new skills for Adult Learners' Week.

More than 75 free workshops will be held at libraries and other locations across the borough for people hoping to learn something new, or refresh old skills.

The national campaign – organised locally by the Council and The Learning

“I learnt so much and now I have more confidence in using a computer. It was a really good learning experience.”

Trust – promotes all types of adult education, whether someone's aim is to get a better job, try something new, help out at their children's school, or discover something new about the world.

Trish Smith, head of Adult Learning Trust, said: “We run a range of adult learning courses all year round and we invite all Hackney adults to join in this week of fun and try out something new.

“By getting involved, local people can help shape learning opportunities.”

Some of the short courses on offer in the borough included songwriting, drawing, first aid, finance management, healthy eating, keeping fit, dance, martial arts, vegetable growing, face painting, Zumba and how to make jams and preserves.

Resident Josh Parr attended a computer course during Adult Learners' Week last year.

He said: “I learnt so much and now I have more confidence in using a computer. It was a really good learning experience. I'm looking forward to Adult Learners' Week this year. It always gets better.”

Cllr Jonathan McShane, Cabinet Member for Health, Social Care and Culture, added: “The Council is committed to supporting residents to access education and new skills, and Adult Learners' Week provides a good way to do this through experienced mentors, as well as finding out about training or further educational opportunities.”

One Movement festival fun

MORE than 1,000 young people were among the first to trial sports at an event in the Olympic Park's Copper Box. Former world silver medallist Tony Jarrett opened the One Movement festival, which aimed to increase sports participation in the six Olympic host boroughs. Under the watchful eyes of coaches, 11 to 19-year-olds tried out 13 sports in the 7,500-seater arena, where top class athletes will be competing for medals this summer. Handball, dance, judo, table tennis, athletics and cycling were among the sports on offer at the 23 April event. Tony said: “The Copper Box is an inspiring venue and the fact it will be used for community sport after the Games will be a special legacy for young people in London.”

Resident Jordan Campbell, nine, added: “I feel like a VIP guest getting here before the athletes and trying out sports at the Copper Box.”

After the Games, the Copper Box will be converted into a multi-use community venue offering a range of sports. One Movement was organised by East London Business Alliance with National Lottery funding.

Rowers meet Olympic heroes

THE only surviving Londoner to have won a rowing medal at the 1948 Olympics, and a leading contender for gold this summer, met young Hackney rowers preparing for the London Youth Games regatta this summer.

1948 Olympic silver medallist Paul Bircher, 83, and Mark Hunter, who won gold at Beijing 2008, answered questions from the young people on 26 April and spoke about their experiences of top-flight competition.

Monique Pontifex, a PE teacher who runs a rowing group at Cardinal Pole School, said: “What a fantastic opportunity for our young rowers. They enjoyed listening to the question and answer session with Mark Hunter and Paul Bircher, and getting photographs and autographs from these two great athletes, as well as holding their medals from the Olympics.”

Award for torch designers

THE London 2012 torch, devised by a Shoreditch duo, has been named Design of the Year by the Design Museum.

Edward Barber and Jay Osgerby picked up the award on 25 April, capping off an already successful year that saw them beat 700 rivals to win the prestigious torch design contract.

Perforated with 8,000 holes, the torch represents the number of people that will carry it on a 60-day, 8,000-mile relay around the UK before arriving for the London 2012 opening ceremony on 27 July.

Designer and judge, Hella Jongerious, called the torch a ‘triumph of symbolism and beauty’ that captures the spirit of London and demonstrates how design can celebrate traditional quality in a modern way.

Residents attend a test Paralympic wheelchair rugby event on 19 April, which saw Great Britain reach the final after a narrow win over Australia

Wheelchair rugby test success

YOUNG residents joined some 2,000 spectators to watch some of the world's best wheelchair rugby athletes compete in a test event for the Paralympic Games.

The visitors, many of whom had never seen a wheelchair rugby game before, were delighted at the opportunity to watch the Paralympic sport on 19 April.

Resident Ian Dunkley, who attended the event with his nine-year-old son, Ethan – a wheelchair user – said: “Ethan was as excited as I had ever seen him watching a sporting event. The great thing about it was that the disabilities of the participants became irrelevant, and it just came down to which team was going to win the match.”

“The Paralympic Games provide a unique showcase to expose the wider population to disability sport”

Local author Tim Rushby-Smith added: “The Paralympic Games provide a unique showcase to expose the wider population to disability sport, and demonstrate how exciting it can be. It is also an opportunity for people to get a measure of the levels of personal sacrifice made by the participants.”

Teams participating included Australia, Sweden, Canada and Great Britain – ranked second, fourth, fifth and sixth in the world respectively.

Great Britain reached the final of the tournament at the Olympic Park Basketball Arena, following a 52-51 victory over Australia in over time.

Debbie Jevans, Director of Sport at London Organising Committee of the Olympic Games (LOCOG), said: “Wheelchair rugby is an exciting sport and we are delighted to be hosting some of the world's best teams, as well as being able to offer the opportunity to thousands of people from the local area to come and watch the competition.”

The Paralympic Games take place from 29 August to 9 September. Scheduling and ticket information can be found at: www.london2012.com/paralympics

Hackney is one of the most diverse places in the UK. In this regular feature, we profile the borough's great & good or just plain interesting

A rebel with applause...

SAT at his local shop, Palm 2 in Lower Clapton, poet and playwright Lemn Sissay watches the lunchtime hustle and bustle unfold. Chatting to the shopkeepers and customers, while sipping his 'usual' coffee, Lemn seems very much at home.

'Yet 'home' for the Olympic-commissioned poet is somewhere that has taken many years to find. Born in Wigan, Lancashire, Lemn was placed in foster care for a period at three-months-old, at the request of his Ethiopian mother, while she studied. He lived with a religious white family for 11 years – after which he grew up in childrens' homes.

At the age of 17 he left the care system and moved to Manchester, where he made his name as a writer. But despite his tough upbringing, Lemn is keen to emphasise that it did not shape who he is today. He says: "I'm not defined by my scars, but by my healing."

Lemn has written poetry since he can remember, publishing his first anthology, 'Rebel Without Applause', at 25. He says: "I was born a writer. Poetry was my way of interpreting the world around me. I get miffed when people view poetry as some sort of light thing. You try and face a piece of paper on your own and write what you truly feel and then tell me that was easy. I don't think of poetry as some sort of airy, fairy issue, it's at the beating heart of who we are."

He moved to Hackney in 2004. He says: "I don't want to live in a monoculture, like where I grew up, because people cultivate this fear of 'other.' I'm honoured to be accepted here – it means a lot to me that shopkeepers know my name and I know theirs."

Lemn was made an artist and resident at the Southbank Centre in 2006. In 2010, he was appointed Member of the Order of the British Empire (MBE) for services to literature, and also made an honorary Doctor of Letters. This year, he became the first of five poets – including Poet Laureate Carol Ann Duffy, John Burnside, Caroline Bird and Jo Shapcott – who were commissioned to write poems for installations at the Olympic Park.

Lemn's poem, 'Spark Catchers', was inspired by the match girls at the Bryant and May match factory in Bow. He explains: "I was offered the entire Olympic site to seek out a reason to write a poem. I found the story of the match making factory and read about a woman called Annie Besant who wrote an article entitled 'White Slavery in London' about the terrible working conditions of women there. They symbolise what I know about the East End – that it's a worker-led place."

And what does it mean for Lemn to be 'tattooed on to the skin of the Olympic Park?' He chuckles: "I'm proud to be not only the first commissioned poet for the Olympic Games, but also the one that lives around the corner. History is a living thing – when you go to a museum you're essentially entering a time machine. And that's what happens when you enter the Olympic site through my poem."

Although Lemn's upbringing may not have shaped who he is, it's clear that having a place called 'home' is something he feels passionately about.

"Isn't it amazing – I've been to a lot of cities in the world, but Hackney feels just right. To be accepted by a community is to feel its strength. The nature of diversity is literally the nature of humanity.

"I wouldn't want to be anywhere else in the world – genuinely," he concludes.

All your green questions answered

Q: I have too much garden rubbish to fit in my wheelie bin, can I leave it out in bin bags?

A: No, plastic bags and refuse sacks do not compost and cannot be processed at the London EcoPark facility in Edmonton, which the Council uses to turn green waste into compost for the borough's parks and gardens. The Council's recycling collection teams will not pick up these bags and may leave them by the kerbside. Residents who need to put out a bit of extra garden waste can ask the Council for reusable brown bags which are easy to store away when not being used. These are also available for people who don't have space for a wheeled bin, but would still like to recycle their garden waste.

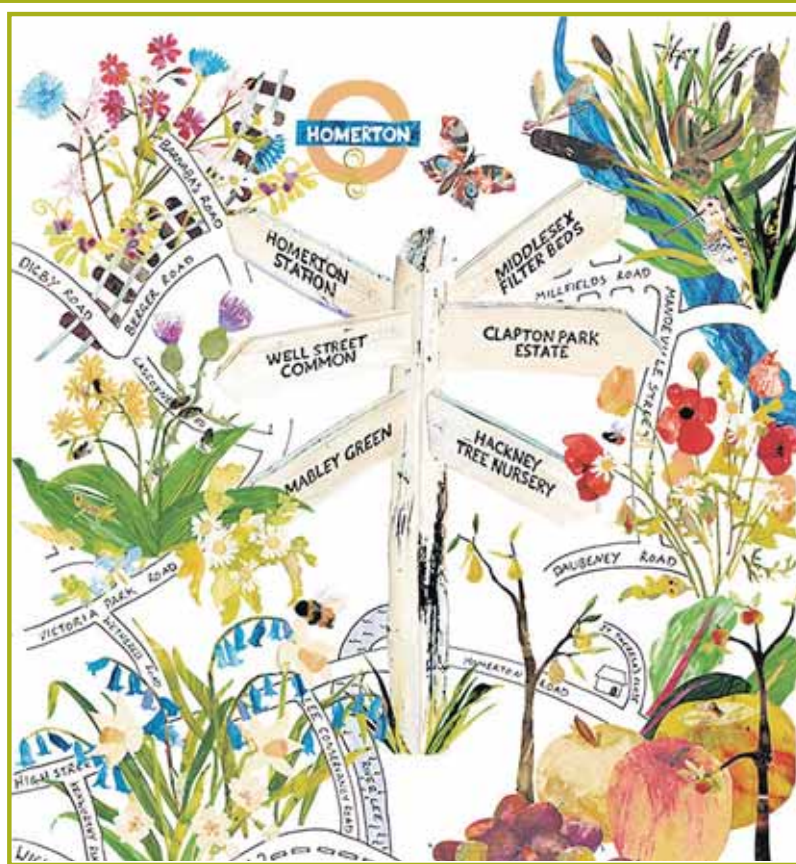

To order a brown bin or bag, or to find out about collection days, visit:

www.hackney.gov.uk/brown_bin; or call the recycling hotline on: 020 8356 6688.

Nature map of green projects near Homerton Station; residents on the walk, which covered Mabley Green, Wick Woodland and Clapton Park Estate

Nature walk success

NATURE-loving residents discovered how green their area is, with a walk in and around Homerton Station.

Volunteers from community group Friends of Homerton Station liaised with the Council to organise a nature walk to showcase local green projects.

Artist Erica Read was also commissioned to create a 'nature map' of wildflower and food-growing projects within walking distance of the station.

Cllr Jonathan McShane, Cabinet Member for Health, Social Care and Culture, said: "People may be surprised to learn how much nature exists on their doorstep. I hope the walk encouraged people to get out and about in Hackney's green spaces, and maybe even to keep fit by volunteering with nature conservation projects."

The walk on 17 March was attended by 28 residents and took in Mabley Green community meadow; Wick Woodland; biodiversity initiatives at Clapton Park Estate; and ended with a picnic at the Tree Nursery on Homerton Road.

Resident Sara Westerberg said: "It was great to be out in the fresh air, and very inspiring to find out more about nature conservation projects in Homerton."

The Friends will also host a cycle ride event on 9 June.

Hackney awarded with 'slow living' prize

THE borough's drive towards creating a slower, more sustainable local environment has been recognised.

Following in the footsteps of New York, Shanghai and Milan, last month saw London at the centre of events for Slow Living week – which supports the idea that society would benefit from taking more time to reflect on how individuals' actions can have positive benefits on their environment.

To mark the week, Italian organisation the Art of Slow Living (L'Arte del Vivere con Lentezza) recognised Hackney as one of the greenest London boroughs, and highlighted specific community initiatives, including local food growing and the promotion of cycling.

It also noted the work done throughout the borough by organisations such as Hackney Community Tree Nursery and Edible Forest Garden, and the Eastern Curve Garden in Dalston.

Cllr Jonathan McShane, Cabinet Member for Health, Social Care and Culture, was presented with an award at an event in Dalston CLR James Library on 28 March. He said: "Sustainable living and caring for our local environment are top priorities for the Council."

Community volunteering is a buzz

OVER 20 engineers from National Grid got back in touch with nature to help revamp a community garden in Hackney.

The volunteers took time out from work to assist London Wildlife Trust's environmental and educational work at the East Reservoir Community Garden in Stoke Newington.

It provides a haven for wildlife, complete with an eco-classroom with a living roof.

The volunteers worked on a variety of tasks including creating a new footpath, bird box making, tree cutting, vegetable patch preparation and reed bed management.

Volunteer David Luetchford said:

"National Grid is committed to the areas in which it works and the London Wildlife Trust is a fantastic example of how we can support a positive environmental and educational legacy in Hackney."

News in brief

Want to make Hackney greener?

RESIDENTS are invited to attend an event that aims to bring people together who want to make the borough a greener place. It will give people the opportunity to:

- Listen to the Council's green aims, including what progress it has made on residents' suggestions from a previous meeting
- Find out about local groups running projects in the borough, and how to get involved in them
- Network with representatives from the Council and green groups

The following speakers are expected to attend the event:

- Cllr Sophie Linden, Cabinet Member for Crime, Sustainability and Customer Service
- James Palmer, Hackney Council's Head of Programmes and Projects
- Anna O'Brien and Feimatta Conteh from the Arcola theatre's Dalston Energy Angels project
- Jo Homan from green community initiative Transition Finsbury Park

The event is set to take place on 12 May, from 10.30am to 2pm, at Hackney Picturehouse Attic, Mare Street. For more info, or to book, e-mail: francesca.bury@hackney.gov.uk; or call: 020 8356 7915.

Bauhaus: Art as Life

Until 12 August at the Barbican Art Gallery, Silk St, EC2Y 8DS

FOR most of us, everyday life is not often infused with high art. However, a new exhibition at Barbican gallery gives insight into a formative artistic movement that aimed to marry the two, taking aesthetics and design as a way of life.

The appropriately named, 'Bauhaus: Art as Life' brings together works, documents and other historical curiosities from the world's most famous art and design school in the biggest Bauhaus exhibition to be held in the UK in over 40 years.

While the German school, which rose to international notoriety

► For more info, visit: www.barbican.org.uk between 1919-33, is most often associated with architecture, the exhibition reflects a broader philosophy of 'beauty, form and function' that its practitioners sought to infuse into all aspects of daily life. From painting, sculpture and photography to household designs, clothing, toys, music and theatre, the collection includes over 400 works by artists including Walter Gropius, Wassily Kandinsky and Paul Klee. The exhibition is also accompanied by a series of talks, walks and other events that highlight the turbulent history of the movement, its key figures and its lasting global influence.

Past 2 Present

10 May, Hackney Picturehouse, 270 Mare St, E8 1HE

A NEW Windrush documentary is exploring the development of West Indian communities in Hackney. Cross generation film 'Past 2 Present' pulls together memories of the past and future aspirations of the borough's Caribbean residents. Dave Ramdial, director of youth charity Hold It Down, managed the project with film company In the Picture. He said: "We found a disconnection between young and old in the Caribbean community, which used to be very close knit. Nowadays some older people are afraid of younger people while some younger people can be a bit aggressive towards those older than them. "This film looks at the lack of opportunity the first West Indians in the UK had, how they became strong members of society and discusses why today some young people are not taking prospects available to them."

The Windrush generation contributors were as old as 90, while the youngest Caribbean heritage participants involved were aged between 18 and 24.

The Conquest of the South Pole

Arcola, 24 Ashwin Street, Dalston, E8 3DL, until 26 May

By Chris Moore

'THE Conquest of the South Pole' was written by Manfred Karge in East Germany in 1986. Given that context, how will the play stand the test of time? For a start, nearly everyone in the play is unemployed. Secondly, the ensemble don absurd clothing and enter into a fantasy world of role-playing and delusion. So far so good. Four unemployed men escape the drudgery of unemployment and begin to re-enact Roald Amundsen's expedition to the South Pole. Lead by the enigmatic Slupianek (O-T Fagbenie) the men pretend to traverse across the Antarctic in an attic, leaping bottomless crevasses and cracking ice as their psyches fracture under the strain of having no jobs – just a vast wilderness of time and bottles of Schnapps. When Braukmann (Sam Crane) gets a job, he doesn't want to tell the rest of the group and becomes more obsessed with the expedition, much to the chagrin of his wife (Emma Cuniffe). Sam delivers a tense performance of a man so close to being totally broken that he can barely stand up. Occasionally the pace seems to wander, but some sharply written monologues refocus the play. The despair felt by the characters is highly pertinent at this time of high unemployment and tax breaks for the rich. It was written in 1986, but it could've been made yesterday. Info: 020 7503 1646; www.arcolatheatre.com

Singing for the Games

P RIMARY pupils penned two songs to mark the start of the 2012 Olympic Games.

Year Six students from Nightingale and St Dominic's primaries launched the songs at the House of Lords on 1 May.

Working with The Songwriting Charity, 12 students spent two days devising songs

'Determination' and 'Extra, extra, read all about it', as well as creating a CD sleeve and music video.

Zainab, of Nightingale primary, said: "It has been fun and I've never written a song before. Sometimes I get shy, but when I got behind the microphone I felt confident."

Darryl, of St Dominic's primary, added: "We've learnt so much about making lyrics out of topics and brainstorming, and I've also enjoyed being with friends and making raps and seeing how songs are put together."

The event formed part of the Schools at the Heart programme run by The Learning Trust, to engage Hackney's young people in the run up to the Games.

The Songwriting Charity Chief Executive, Nathan

Timothy, said: "From the word go, the children embraced the task of creating their very own Olympic anthem and pop video with determination."

Celebrate World Oceans Day

LOCAL social enterprise, Digital Explorer, is offering free workshops to Hackney schools in celebration of World Oceans Day, on 8 June.

Ever wanted to know how scientific research is conducted in the Arctic Ocean, one of the harshest environments on Earth? While not travelling to the North Pole themselves, pupils will replicate the work from the 2009-11 Catlin Arctic Survey expedition, study data and explore what life is like camping on frozen sea ice. Schools can book assemblies led by an explorer and ex-teacher, who was part of the expedition.

To book a free session, call: 020 3095 9749; or e-mail: info@digitalexplorer.co.uk; or visit: oceans.digitalexplorer.com/events/WOD

Primary school places available

OVER three-quarters of families in the borough got places at their first choice primary school this year, according to figures from The Learning Trust.

Some 77 per cent of applicants were offered their preferred school, while 92.6 per cent got one of their first six choices. Those who didn't get their top choices are being offered alternatives at other schools.

While some boroughs don't have enough primary places for all applicants, there are enough places for every child to study in a Hackney school.

At the time of going to press, there were still places available at the following schools: Thomas Fairchild, Whitmore and De Beauvoir, N1; Princess May, St Thomas Abney, and Simon Marks, N16; Woodberry Down, N4; and Mandeville, E5.

Online applications are now closed, however residents can find out more about schools with places, and apply by calling: 020 8820 7401; or visiting: www.learningtrust.co.uk/schools/primary_schools.

Thomas Fairchild Primary School set to reopen

THOMAS Fairchild Primary School is set to reopen in September, three years after a fire razed the Victorian building to the ground.

A new £9.3million school has been constructed on the same site in Napier Grove, but will now cater for 420 pupils – an increase of 105.

In July 2009, some 100 firefighters from across the borough, as well as Tower Hamlets and Islington, were called to tackle a fierce blaze that raged for over seven hours and severely damaged three floors of the school. The cause of the fire was never established.

At the time, Headteacher Shona Ferguson commented that she and school staff were 'devastated'. She's now counting the days until the autumn term. Shona said: "The children are visiting the site and really feel part of the work."

The rebuild was delayed while the insurance claim was resolved, she added.

The new building will have a rooftop play area, community cafe, solar panels, ICT suite and community courses.

Pupils, staff, governors, parents and the community had significant input into the design, according to The Learning Trust. Shona added: "The old school was an old building doing an old job. We've tried to future-proof this as much as possible in terms of ICT, energy saving and using efficient resources."

Since 2009, Thomas Fairchild pupils and staff have been relocated to Whitmore School, N1, and the Tomlinson Centre, E8.

Young residents from the North London Muslim Community Centre visit The Gambia after being awarded £5,000 from the Hackney Youth Opportunity Fund

Funding up for grabs

A GROUP of Hackney young people have helped communities in The Gambia, after being awarded £5,000 by the Hackney Youth Opportunity Fund (HYOF).

The group, who are all members of the North London Muslim Community Centre, built 10 fresh water wells; helped set up a school with a solar energy supply; donated mattresses to an orphanage; and gave 100 mosquito nets to hospitals and families in need.

Haroon Alibhai, senior youth worker at the centre, said: "We also distributed books, pens and other stationery. The delight children took in receiving a pen – something we take for granted – left many of the group speechless."

The next round of HYOF funding is now open and young people are being asked to come up with ideas for exciting, challenging and enjoyable activities.

Anyone aged eight to 19 can apply for a grant of up to £5,000 through the Council-run fund, which supports youth-led projects in the borough.

To celebrate the launch of the latest round of funding, the Council's youth service – Young Hackney – is holding a free event at the Town Hall on 22 May, from 5-8pm. Visitors can find out how to apply, see examples of previous projects, and apply to become a HYOF panel member.

The deadline for applications is 18 June. For more info, visit: www.younghackney.org.

Celebrating positive community spirit

MEMBERS of charity Hackney Quest organised an event on 13 April to promote the message that young people are positive members of society.

'Keep The Peace' celebrated young people's talents and championed Hackney as a peaceful community. The free event was attended by over 300 people. Organised through a Hackney Quest project called 'Hackney Empowering Active Team' (HEAT), the event showcased the best in song, dance and acting.

Guests included actor and musician Ashley Walters; Mark Prince from the Kiyan Prince Foundation; and Nathaniel Levy from the Robert Levy Foundation – both charities which were set up in memory of young victims of knife crime.

Visitors got the chance to talk with professionals from local youth agencies, and two talented young people were awarded a free term at the Anna Fiorentini Theatre and Film School.

The event received funding from the Hackney Youth Opportunity Fund. For more info, visit: www.hackneyquest.org.uk

North East London and the City

Consultation on changes to urgent care in north Hackney

NHS North East London and the City wants to hear your views about access to GP services in north Hackney.

We are proposing to discontinue walk-in services in Tollgate Lodge and Springfield Health Centre in N16 and instead allow more people to sign on for appointments in those centres – making it easier for local people to register with a GP.

To find out more and to have your say we are holding two drop-in sessions.

At Stamford Hill Library, Portland Avenue, N16 6SB

- Thursday 24 May 12noon to 2.30pm
- Wednesday 30 May 5.30pm to 7.30pm

Refreshments will be served.

More Information on the proposed changes is on www.elc.nhs.uk.

You can also get a copy of the consultation document by emailing engagement2@elc.nhs.uk or by calling our Patient Advice and Liaison Service (PALS) on 0800 389 3093 from 9.30am to 5.30pm Monday to Friday.

The consultation runs until 29 June 2012.

Rave to save!

Fundraisers dressed up in their finery and danced the night away to raise over £13,000 for Headway East London brain injury charity

THEY came, they saw, they raved, and they raised money – at the annual Headway East London Dance Marathon.

Spirited volunteers danced solidly for eight hours to raise money for the Kingsland Road brain injury charity.

So far, the event at York Hall on 28 April has raised £13,000 to fund Headway's therapy and outreach services. Each of the eight hours represented a decade of dance, while genres jumped from jitter bug, boogie and disco; to barn and Bollywood dances.

Guest judge Marc Almond of Soft Cell fame was in attendance, handing out prizes.

Rosalind Crane, Headway's community fundraiser, said: "It was spectacular. There was so much energy in the room, which really encouraged me to keep going. I had to be dragged off the dance floor in the end!"

Miriam Lantsbury, Headway Chief Executive, added: "We're absolutely thrilled with a fun-filled day of fundraising. Sponsorship is still rolling in and we can't wait to see the grand total raised."

Headway East London offers support networking, services, outreach, volunteering, occupational programmes and therapies, for brain injury sufferers and their families.

For more info, and to sponsor, call: 020 7749 7790; or visit: www.headwayeastlondon.org

Top campaigns for body image charity

A VOLUNTEER-run body image charity based in the borough was short-listed for a health award.

Body Gossip was up for two national prizes in the campaign and education categories at the inaugural Body Confidence awards.

Residents Ruth Rogers and Natasha Devon set up Body Gossip together to tackle low self-esteem in both men and women after being inspired by personal events. Tash had an eating disorder as a teenager, and Ruth became disillusioned with the acting industry's obsession with physical appearance.

The charity hosts events; creates films related to body imagery; and presents seminars in Hackney schools to tackle self-harm, bullying, eating disorders and question negative self-images. Their work has won over high profile supporters, including Gok Wan and Natalie Cassidy.

Natasha said: "However bright a student and however good a school, both will fall short of their potential without the right emotional guidance."

The Body Confidence Awards took place on 25 April. For more info, visit: www.bodygossip.org

Cut Films to cut out smoking

CANDID interviews with smokers and an unusual analysis of why squirrels don't smoke are among the films made by Hackney young people for this year's Cut Films competition. The national contest asks young people to research the dangers of smoking, make a short film about it and share through websites and social media.

Stoke Newington School and Sixth Form; City Academy; Skinner's Academy; Clissold Park School; and two groups from the Council's youth service – Young Hackney – submitted entries to represent Hackney.

Ahmed Mangera, ICT teacher at The City Academy, said: "Cut Films fitted really well as a creative project for our focus on health and wellbeing, and gave students the opportunity to explore their personal attitudes to smoking, finances and peer pressure."

Cut Films is organised by the Deborah Hutton Campaign, which was set up in memory of the former health editor at 'Vogue', who died of lung cancer aged 49.

The competition was created to get young people talking about the risks of smoking and convince their peers not to start the habit.

To view the films, visit: www.cutfilms.org

More blood donations wanted

THE NHS is appealing for more blood donations ahead of the London Olympic and Paralympic Games this summer. London 2012 is expected to bring another 1.2million people into the UK, this combined with other big events like Wimbledon and the Queen's Jubilee is expected to put a big strain on blood supplies.

The NHS Blood and Transplant (NHSBT) service recently announced that it hopes to boost stocks by 30 per cent by the start of the Games in July.

The NHS needs blood for a range of medical situations, including childbirth and those having surgery. Types O positive and O negative are particularly in demand. First time donors are also being encouraged to give blood.

Jon Latham, from NHSBT, said: "This year we have a unique situation and need the public's help to counterbalance the inevitable dip in donations as people celebrate a memorable summer for the country."

To find out more about giving blood, call: 0300 123 23 23; or visit: www.blood.co.uk

The NHS announced stocks need to be 30 per cent higher

The Mayor and Councillors

Councillors are elected by Hackney residents and serve for four years. The last borough elections were in May 2010.

Councillors have a range of responsibilities, including helping to oversee the Council and its services.

They hold advice surgeries where residents can meet their local representative and ask them to take up issues that may be of concern.

Generally they can help with Council related matters, but if the issue is the responsibility of another person or organisation, councillors can often point people in the right direction and tell residents who they need to see.

Hackney has 57 councillors representing areas called wards – illustrated in the map opposite.

To check which councillor covers your area, or confirm surgery times, call: 020 8356 3373. More info: www.hackney.gov.uk/l-mayor-cabinet-councillors.htm

Peace and politics

THE origins of one of Hackney's landmark buildings – Stoke Newington Town Hall – date back to the mid 19th century.

The Metropolis Management Act of 1855 created the Board of Works for Hackney and Stoke Newington, which met in a building next to St Augustine's Tower, until a bigger Town Hall was built further down Mare Street.

Stoke Newington became a separate institution in 1894, and moved into what had formerly been South Hornsey district council offices in Milton Grove, N16. It was extended in 1915, but by the 1930s a more spacious and modern building was required, and a design competition was held to extend a public library in Church Street.

The competition was won by architect J Reginald Truelove, and the municipal offices and separate Assembly Hall were built between 1934 and 1937. The style chosen was described at the time as 'a modern variant of English Renaissance', with the interior fitted out in contemporary Art Deco style using materials from different parts of the Empire – including Australian walnut panelling and Canadian maple flooring.

Truelove's design is most memorable for the great sweeping Portland stone and brick curve of the frontage, in the centre of which stands the ceremonial entrance with its great bronze doors opening onto a majestic teak staircase leading upstairs to the Council chamber.

Less than two years after the Town Hall's opening, the Second World War broke out. Whilst the Council offices buzzed with staff dealing with the crisis at hand, the Assembly Hall next door played its part in keeping up morale by holding variety shows and dances, as well as being a collection point for the gas masks which were thankfully never needed.

The building itself was felt to be a potential bombing target, and was given a coating of camouflage paint which can still be seen today. The surrounding streets were badly bombed, but the Town Hall sustained little damage, so it seems the camouflage worked.

After the war ended, the Assembly Hall continued to be a popular entertainment venue for music and dancing, and when the old metropolitan boroughs of Hackney, Shoreditch and Stoke Newington were merged to form the modern London Borough of Hackney in 1965, the Town Hall building continued to house some offices. But gradually all the services moved to Mare Street and the offices and Hall became run down and neglected.

In 1995, the municipal buildings and their surrounding walls were awarded a Grade II listing, and the late 1990s saw the Council embark on a restoration of the Church Street buildings, retaining their original character wherever possible.

The camouflage markings were restored, and a section of Tudor brickwork from the old manor house which sits under its foundations can still be seen in the main foyer.

The buildings reopened to the public in 2009 and are now a venue for meetings and events, with the Council chamber hosting weddings and civil partnership ceremonies, whilst the Assembly Hall is used for receptions, parties and – as it always was – lots of music and dancing.

Recipes straight from the ovens at Hoxton Apprentice

www.hoxtonapprentice.com

ORIGINALLY from Portugal, Maria Mota, 34, has always been passionate about cooking, but had difficulty breaking into the hospitality industry. After leaving school, she spent time working in a number of short-term roles, until she found work as a hotel kitchen assistant in Portugal. She worked alongside the head chef carrying out a range of kitchen tasks from preparation of vegetables to ensuring the cleanliness of the kitchen. Circumstances brought Maria to Hackney in 2001. Owing to her lack of English, she found it difficult to find work, so she enrolled on an ESOL Level 1 course at Hackney Community College, which enabled her to gain employment as a house keeper. Maria then took time out of work to raise her family, but towards the end of 2011 felt the urge to re-focus on a career in hospitality. She was introduced to Hoxton Apprentice and Training for Life by Jobcentre Plus. Now entering her final month on the Apprentice programme, Maria is delighted with her progress. She says: "Since being on the programme, my confidence has developed and I've learnt so many new things."

Butterscotch panna cotta

Serves 7

Preparation time
20 mins

Cooling time
12 hours

Ingredients

For the cream mixture

- 375ml double cream
- 125ml full milk
- 2 gelatine leaves

For the butterscotch

- 30g butter
- 65g dark brown sugar

Method

- Heat the cream and milk together in a pan over a medium heat, bringing it almost to the boil. Meanwhile, heat up the butter and brown sugar together, stirring occasionally until it has all melted together. Once melted, pour the butterscotch mixture into the pan with cream and milk

- Place the gelatine leaves in a bowl of cold water and leave to soak for a couple of minutes until it softens (do not allow it to dissolve). Remove the gelatine from the water, squeezing out excess moisture and whisk into the cream mixture until dissolved
- Sieve the panna cotta mixture, then place into seven individual moulds, cover with cling film and place in the fridge overnight to set
- Before serving, briefly hold the mould under warm water to free the panna cotta, placing on a plate and serve immediately.

The Hoxton Apprentice is a social enterprise set up to train unemployed Hackney people – both in the kitchen and front of house.

Six-month apprenticeships prepare people for the workplace and give them the chance to gain a NVQ in Hospitality. Profits are returned to Training For Life, the charity which operates the restaurant, to deliver more training for unemployed people. If you would like to offer an apprentice a job, or become an apprentice yourself, call Ben Anderson on: 020 7749 2800.

Parking in South Homerton and Hackney South

RESIDENTS and businesses in South Homerton and Hackney South were asked for their views on a review of parking in the area.

Their feedback has helped the Council make an informed decision about where parking restrictions should be introduced.

Changes will be made in roads where the majority of people living there said they were in favour of parking controls between 8.30am and 6.30pm, Monday to Friday.

The Council has written to all residents and businesses in the areas that will be affected by the changes which are due to come into force on 14 May. Notices will also be placed nearby informing the public of the go live date. Vehicles parked in the new zones must display a valid permit, or a visitor voucher.

For further information about the consultation, call: 020 8356 8877; or e-mail: consultparking@hackney.gov.uk; or visit: www.hackney.gov.uk/parking-hys.htm

Voluntary sector grants programme

THE deadline is approaching for residents to have their say on the review of the voluntary sector grants programme.

Some consultation has already taken place with key stakeholders, and the Council is now seeking views from the wider community on proposed changes to how the grants are awarded, which could be introduced for the 2013/14 grants programme launch later this year.

The consultation closes on the 14 May. To take part visit: www.hackney.gov.uk/consultation; call: 020 8356 4066; or e-mail: communitypartnerships@hackney.gov.uk

LICENSING

I, Sivaharan Kandiah of Ground Floor, 64 Upper Clapton Road, London E5 9JP have applied to Hackney Borough Council to grant a New Premises Licence at Ground Floor, 64 Upper Clapton Road, London E5 9JP for the sale by retail of alcohol during the following hours: Monday to Sunday 6.00am to 11.00pm.

Hackney Borough Council Licensing Register is kept at the office of Licensing Service at Hackney Service Centre, Hackney Council, 1 Hillman Street, London E8 1DY where the details of the application may be inspected. The office hours are Monday – Friday 9.00am to 5.00pm.

Any representations against the application must be made in writing and received by the Licensing Service at the above address by no later than Friday 21 May 2012.

Residents and businesses in the vicinity of the premises or bodies representing such residents or businesses may make representations. The grounds on which representations may be made are restricted to the licensing objectives of the prevention of crime and disorder, public safety, the prevention of public nuisance and the protection of children from harm. Copies of all representations will be sent to the applicant.

Persons making representations will have to appear at the Council’s Licensing Sub Committee.

Note: It is an offence liable on conviction to a fine up to £5,000.00 for an application to knowingly or recklessly make a false statement in connection with the application.

Notice is given that Shangri-La has applied to HACKNEY COUNCIL for a Special Treatment Licence for the premises Shangri-La Tattoo Parlour, Unit 107, 54-58 Kingsland Road, Shoreditch, E2 8DP

Anyone wishing to oppose the application must give notice, in writing, to the Licensing Service Manager, London Borough of Hackney, 1 Hillman Street, London, E8 1DY, within THREE WEEKS from the date of publication of this Notice, specifying the grounds for opposition.

Persons objecting to the grant of a licence must be prepared to attend a hearing before a Committee of the Council.

Hackney Annual Carers' Conference

In Sickness and in Health

10.30am to 3.30pm, Tuesday 12 June 2012, Stoke Newington Town Hall

Do you care for someone? Then this day is for you. Join us to celebrate the role of carers! Book your free place today.

What is the Carers' Conference about? The Carers' Conference is a free annual event for carers who take care of someone who lives in Hackney. Carers can have a day out, meet other carers and find out about support and services available.

Who is a carer? Carers look after family, a partner or friend in need of help because they are ill, frail or have a disability. The care that they provide is unpaid. If you are a carer, you may also be caring for someone who has mental health issues, learning difficulties, or is misusing drugs or alcohol. Caring for someone can be a rewarding and positive experience. Caring can also be worrying and affect your life in many ways such as stopping you from being able to work or study.
